Explained...

We recommend the Oxygen Airframe is inflated to a pressure of approximately 4 PSI. However, most people inflate the airframe to capacity when first inflating, over and above our recommended pressure. Depending on ambient temperature changes the PSI can increase dramatically and on warm sunny days the air inside the tube will expand, causing the PSI inside the tube to increase. If this PSI pressure increases to over 50% more than our recommended 4 PSI through either over inflation or changes in ambient temperature the Intelligent Frame Relief Valve will release the surplus air and maintain the frame at a maximum of 6 PSI. As the temperature cools during the night the pressure will reduce and will continue to ebb and flow during the hottest and coldest parts of the day throughout the period of use. This ingenious system ensures that the tubes cannot be damaged by increased pressures.

Condensation Explained...

Condensation is a completely natural occurrence which happens when warm air meets cold surfaces, forming little water droplets usually on the inside of the fabric; like you may experience on windows at home. An average adults' breath produces 1 litre of water vapour every day which is released into the air; therefore having numerous people sleeping inside will produce a vast amount of water vapour in the air that will condensate. All Outdoor Revolution products are protected with a durable water repellent treatment and all seams are heat sealed. This process prevents water ingress, but can also prevent the moisture trapped in the air inside from escaping, causing condensation. To help ease condensation, we have put air vents on every product and mesh screens on doors, as well as dual zip windows and doors; maximising air flow. We would also recommend taking a micro breathable travel towel to wipe the roof or walls of the product if condensation appears, to speed up the drying process.

Pioneering Technology...

Pheonix mesh. An assisted healing 'smart' material that has the incorporated ability to repair any snag damage caused by usage over time. We have taken the inspiration from biological systems which have the ability to heal after being injured. Simply by gently manipulating and moving the mesh around the damaged area will return the mesh to its original form.

Dura-tech

Dura-tech. Welded tube technology that enables the creation of the innovative single inflation point systems without any troublesome taps and connectors, increasing the usability and practicality of Outdoor Revolution products. This technology provides the most efficient, simple and reliable air frames on the market today and carries a Lifetime Guarantee*.

Twin Piping. All 2018 Awnings are fitted with our Twin Piping system - (4mm & 6mm) to allow for greater versatility in connecting to both caravan awning rails and Fiamma style connection rails on some motorhomes.

Lumi-Link - Up/Down Lighting For 2018 all our models now incorporate attachment systems for our own exclusive lighting systems. See pages 40-41 for information and how these lighting systems can transform the ambience of your caravan awning.
